

I am appalled to learn that Sinclair Broadcasting is "ordering" all its local stations to air any program, much less a program as politically biased and factually unsubstantiated as the "Stolen Honor..." Individual stations should be allowed to judge the worthiness and appropriateness of every program aired on their station.

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when large companies control the airwaves, we get more of what's good for the bottom line and less of what we need for our democracy. Instead of something produced at "News Central" far away, it's more important that we see real people from our own communities and more substantive news about issues that matter.

Sinclair's actions show why we need to strengthen media ownership rules, not weaken them. They show why the license renewal process needs to involve more than a returned postcard. Thank you.
